

BASIC NAVIGATION

We often take for granted just how much technology plays a part in our lives.

But what happens when the technology doesn't work? Would you have what it takes to successfully navigate within a foreign environment with just the aid of a map and compass?

Delivered online in a small group setting, this course is designed to teach you the fundamentals of reading and interpreting maps, primarily in an outdoor field environment, using rudimentary navigation aids, coupled with tried and tested practices that have been used for centuries and still used today by the military, emergency services and outdoors enthusiasts.
